

Now that I start writing to you, I have to admit that to recognise you always already means to miss you.